OBJECTIONS TO A PROPOSED NEW STATE.

An interview at Los Angeles with Colonel Epes Randolph, of Tucson, brings out strongly the opposition of the people of Arizona to the proposed admission of that Territory and New Mexico to the Union as one State. He declares 95 per cent of the inhabitants of Arizona are opposed to such joint Statehood, and that it would be nothing less than a crime. He says there are more voters in New Mexico who can neither read, write nor speak English than there are voters in all Arizona.

The argument has been made by advocates of the joint admission of the two Territories as a single State that the Nation is not bound to consider territorial pride or prejudices in such a matter. This seems to be a mistaken view, because to bring the people of a Territory into the Union, virtually against their will, is unfair from any standpoint. Nor could harmony be expected in a State made up of such conflicting and opposing elements as those existing in Arizona and New Mexico today. And in view of the great illiteracy prevailing in New Mexico, it seems undesirable for the welfare of a Nation as a whole to give the two Territories equal representation as a State in the Senate of the United States with the oldest, largest, and wealthiest of the present members of the Union. Both Arizona and New Mexico can wait for further development, population, progress and education before admission to the sisterhood of states. And it is not a sound argument for taking them in at this time that there are States, such as Nevada, whose population is even smaller than that of either of these Territories. There is even a possibility, as Colonel Randolph has said, that in case New Mexico and Arizona be admitted as one State, one of the New United States Senators, and the Congressman and Governor of the new State, might need an interpreter, owing to the strength of the Mexican element. — Bee.

C. W. Friend is getting in his holiday stock which is well selected and prices reasonable.

Two big teams departed for Bodie yesterday loaded with supplies for the camp. The herd is about forty tons at the depot awaiting transportation to the southern camps and teamsters can find a job by calling around.

Rev. Lloyd and family who have been visiting in California have returned to this city.

A number of skating parties will enjoy the excellent sport on Washoe Lake today and on the ponds near this city.
